As residents living along the Williams Pipeline right-of-way we want to recognize all the companies that were involved in the installation of the new pipeline for a job well done. The companies involved were: the Williams Companies Inc.; Henkels and McCoy Inc.; Hillis Group LLC; and Haines Kibblehouse Inc. The installation of the pipeline occurred in front of our properties, involving the driveways, woods, and yards.

Even though our driveways became nonexistent with all the excavating, access to and from our homes was never compromised. Trees and brush were removed from the right-of-way area and a huge ditch was dug for the new pipeline. The job went smoothly and the work crews were respectful to our needs. The excavation sites were amazingly restored to their original state or improved upon.

All the work was accomplished with the utmost respect for us and our properties. The employees of each of the above mentioned companies were friendly, exceedingly courteous, and considerate in every step of the project. We wish to thank them for making this project a pleasant and interesting experience for us. We could not have asked for any better treatment than what we received. It was a pleasure to meet and deal with such professionalism. And we would be very open to any future dealings with any of these companies.

In conclusion, we would like to express our gratitude for all their hard work and the consideration we received, and say this was a job well done.

Real culprits missing

Tuesday's editorial cartoon with the zombie donkeys representing "tax and spend" Democrats was lacking only one thing. No one was leading them!

Their leaders should have been "spend billions we don't have and set the stage for the current financial disaster" duo of George Bush and Dick Cheney.

How convenient that the Republican pundits so easily forget the real culprits.
